Good Night.

The heedless mind forgets its meaning;

Good night! a word so often said,

'Tis only when some heart lies dead,

On which our own was leaning,

We hear in maddening music roll The last "good night" along the soul

It peals along the quickening ear.

And tender gales of memory

It calls from out the ground,

On every side, around-above,

Forever waft it near,

"Good night "- in tones that never die ;

When stilled the voice, O crush of pain-

Good night !- it mocks us from the grave-

It overleaps that strange world's bound

"Good night, good night" to life and love

Good night! O, wherefore fades away

Why follows that good night, no day,

O, rather say, dull brain, once more, "Good night! thy time of toil is o'er!"

Good night--now cometh gentle sleep,

Good night, O, holy, blest and deep. The rest that follows pain!

And tears that fall like gentle rain,

How should we reach God's upper light,

If life's long day had no "good night?"

What reason is there for Canada and Australia sharing in the risks and disadvantages of a quarrel between Victoria and Nicholas on account of Abdul Mejid? Why should Sydney be jeoparded on account of the Greek Christians? or why should Halifax be threatened on account of the balance of power in Europe? What practical connexion is there between these throes with which Europe is in travail, and which, it must be confessed, have as yet brought forth so little, and the interest of the Canadian farmer or the Nova Scotian fisherman? If none, then why should the colonies of England suffer from the mutabilities of English politics and diplomacy? Is there not every reason for inpendence-economical, political, moral? Will not the good sense of England, which is so readily approving of the Canadian treaty of reciprocity with the United States, and which is about to withdraw her soldiers from Canada in a short time accomplish the form, as she has nearly accomplished the fart, of separation between her and Canada?
